

Introducing the WE Finance Code

Over 400 million women entrepreneurs around the world have vast potential to grow their businesses, add value to the economy, and create jobs, but they lack the financing to achieve their goals. They represent a $1.7 trillion growth opportunity for financial service providers (FSPs) and $5-6 trillion in potential value addition to the global economy.

The Code

The Women Entrepreneurs Finance Code (the WE Finance Code or, simply, the Code) is a commitment by FSPs, regulators, development banks, and other financial ecosystem players to work together to increase funding provided to women-led micro, small and medium enterprises (WMSMEs) around the world, so that they can grow and add value to the economy and their communities.

Organizations can participate in the Code in a growing number of pilot countries or through a global mechanism. Code participants commit to:

LEADERSHIP

Designating a member of their senior management team to champion the organizations' efforts to support women-led businesses

ACTION

Expanding and introducing new measures that will support women entrepreneurs

DATA

Monitoring and reporting annually a commonly agreed set of indicators on the level of financing provided to WMSMEs or supporting others' efforts to do so

Country Pilots

The goal of the WE Finance Code is to increase funding provided to WMSMEs around the world, so that they can grow and add value to the economy and their communities.

The Code drives systemic change in how women entrepreneurs are financed by:

Launching the Code in country

Local champions are encouraged to build national public-private coalitions to introduce the Code in their country.

These coalitions adapt the Code's flexible framework to the local context, ensuring national relevance and uptake. They establish WMSME definitions and data reporting guidelines and use established channels to track and report progress.

National Coalitions have four common characteristics:

- 1 A public declaration of intent to introduce the Code in country, adhering to the minimum guidelines of the Code's global framework.
- 2 Governance that creates oversight and accountability for local adoption of the Code.
- 3 Designated coordinator to oversee local implementation and interface with and report to the Code's global coordinator.
- 4 A mechanism to aggregate data with integrity and in a format that will facilitate mainstreaming over time.

Financial Service Providers

To participate in the Code, FSPs sign a letter specifying their commitments related to leadership, action, and data. After a one-year grace period from signing, they are expected to report progress on their commitments and on the Code's core indicators annually to a trusted local entity.

FSP participants may include banks, non-bank financial institutions, microfinance institutions, fintechs, funds, angel networks, insurance companies, and the like.

The Code Letter of Commitment

“The FSP endorses the Code and will work together with partners and other stakeholders to provide leadership, improve data, and take actions that will help eliminate constraints and financing gaps for women entrepreneurs. As a Signatory in the Women Entrepreneurs Finance Code, it will:

- ✓ Designate a senior leader to champion the organization's efforts to support women-led businesses
- ✓ Expand and introduce measures that will support women entrepreneurs
- ✓ Track a commonly agreed set of indicators on the level of financing provided to women-led firms

The FSP will report on these commitments and indicators to an agreed aggregator after a grace period for inclusion in the WE Finance Code global annual reports and will make its commitment public.”

Core Indicators to be sex-disaggregated

About the Code

The Code was developed collaboratively with finance leaders from over 30 private and public sector organizations. It draws on lessons from the UK Investing in Women Code and builds on efforts to close finance and data gaps affecting women entrepreneurs.

The Women Entrepreneurs Finance Initiative (We-Fi), housed in the World Bank, coordinates the Code with its Implementing Partners and other global partners. A Global Advisory Group advises on implementation and governance.
